94Fifty[®] Sports Technologies develops sophisticated but cost-effective basketball skill analysis technologies for the mass market. It is committed to bringing new information to both elite level and youth level basketball so that players can better develop skills and their coaches and trainers have objective information about their development. The Company's mission is to improve the fundamental skill of any basketball player by using information to make skill development measurable. Our vision is to create the most compelling destination for athletes who play team sports to compete with any other athlete, anywhere in the world, in real time.
